

ABSTRACT

A mail processing system that includes a franking machine and at least one removable user interactive display. The display includes a wireless connection for wireless communication between the display and the franking machine when the display is physically disconnected from the franking machine.